Quartz counters and a generous gathering island

Upstairs living room

Dining among the trees

Cook and dine among the trees.

At the end of a private dead-end driveway in Bellingham's Samish neighborhood, this updated home backs onto city greenbelt along Connelly Creek. Mature cedars and Douglas firs fill the outlook from nearly every window; only one window faces a neighboring home. The upstairs kitchen has quartz counters, a large island, and updated appliances. The adjoining dining area looks directly into the evergreens, with a balcony just outside. Four bedrooms and 2.5 bathrooms span two levels, each with a kitchen, laundry, and exterior entrance. Downtown, Fairhaven, and Lake Padden are approximately ten minutes away by car.

Primary bedroom with a walk-in closet

Remodeled primary bathroom

Downstairs kitchen with butcher-block counters

Fenced backyard and large Trex deck

The primary suite has a walk-in closet and a bathroom remodeled in 2025. The second upstairs bedroom is shown as an office. A two-car garage, driveway and gravel parking, storage shed, gas furnace, and three-zone ductless heating and cooling system complete the property.
